This work is dedicated to God Almighty for his wonderful work he did and also the extravagant grace to my family for their joint support that the Lord will grant them all their heart desires.

Finally, my distant friends and well wishers who assisted me in one way or the other in making this project a success. God bless you all and I love you all.

ABSTRACT

This study examined the impact of liquidity performance in commercial using First Bank of Nigeria Plc as case study. Secondary data used in this study were carried from text books, journals, magazines and newspaper. Our findings indicate that there was a positive relationship between liquidity management and the existence of any banks. Based on this findings we recommend that should be prudent in extending credit facilities to their client/customers to avoid problem of load loss management and competence in banking system should be enhanced to increase asset quality.
